

City of Melton Post-war History

Discovering Melton's post-war story: new heritage project now underway

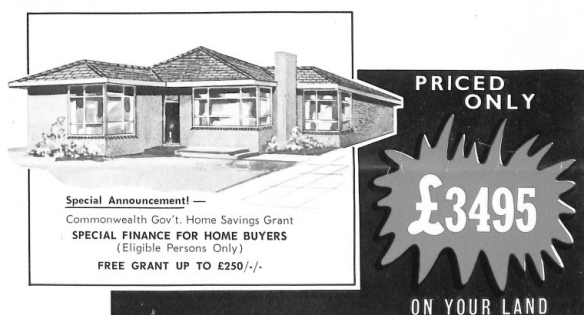

Council is launching a new Thematic Environmental History project to recognise and document the stories, places and experiences that shaped Melton after the Second World War.

Community consultation now open

We want to hear from residents, community groups and stakeholders to help capture the stories, memories and experiences that shaped the City of Melton post-World War II (1945 through to the 1980s).

We'd love to hear from you if you:

- lived, worked, went to school or spent time in the City of Melton during this period
- have memories, photographs or stories about places that were important to you, your family or the wider community
- can share experiences about daily life in the City of Melton, and how the community changed and grew over time
- remember local events, industries, sporting clubs, community groups or cultural traditions that helped shape the City of Melton's identity.

Meet the HAPPY PEOPLE!

..... and the happy people around Melton are those who have settled down at WESTMELTON SATELLITE CITY. Over 100 happy families are enjoying this new, relaxed way of life. Read what some of them have to say:-
